Look for the Broad Street Pump, for good public health

AFIP Priorities

The 1996 Congress of Delegates adopted statements on public health issues with emphasis on health care reform. The statement below is an excerpt.

Primary Physicians

"Primary physicians have a big part in keeping community health." Dr. Sadler says. "In fact, they focus on primary care, not on the implementation of preventive care. Preventive care is the key to staying healthy."

AFIP members, and the Academy as a whole, are working hard to keep doctors who treat and care for patients at the forefront of health care reform. Dr. Sadler says. "We must keep the public health issue in the forefront of policy making."
