

THE STRUGGLE IN SOUTH AFRICA IS NOT OVER!

There are those who would have us believe that apartheid has ended. There are those who say it is time to lift sanctions. The Liberation movement, including the African National Congress and the Congress of South African Trade Unions, say:

KEEP THE PRESSURE ON APARTHEID!

'Our purpose is to assist the ANC in achieving its goal of building a democratic non-racial society, not tell them how to do it.'

-Congressman Ron Dellums

'Any signals to change the United States position on sanctions is premature. The conditions to establish a post-apartheid South Africa have not been met.'

-Congressman Mervyn Dymally

'Sanctions should remain in place because the purpose for which they were imposed has not yet been achieved.'

-Nelson Mandela

The situation for the African people in South Africa is at a critical stage. The words and paper reforms President F.W. DeKlerk uses to court world opinion have done nothing to ease the suffering of those in the bantustans or those who must endure urban squatter living conditions, conditions imposed by apartheid. Africans still do not have the right to vote in South Africa. As the country prepares for actual transition to majority rule, death squads and collaborator 'contra' forces continue to assassinate members of the Liberation movement (especially the A.N.C.). Violence labeled 'black on black' or 'tribal' is in fact the desperate and vicious attempt of the white government to hold back the will of the people.
