

Come and Support The Free South Africa Movement Rally

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1984 . . . 12:00 Noon to 1:00 PM

McNAMARA BUILDING
(New Federal Building), Corner Michigan and Cass

BACKGROUND: In November an estimated one million South African blacks, predominantly made up of industrial workers, staged a two-day strike in South Africa to protest the apartheid system and a host of grievances stemming from apartheid. The organizing body was the Transvaal Regional Stay-Away Committee, a coalition of 30 unions, community and student organizations.

This demonstration is in solidarity with the Trade Unionists who have been arrested in South Africa, along with the many white and black citizens who have been arrested here in the United States while demonstrating at the South African Embassy in Washington, D.C. and the South African Consulates in this country. America must resist this obnoxious system and demand the release of all prisoners and pressure the South African regime into ending its apartheid system, and we must demand that the Reagan Administration put an end to its policy of "constructive engagement" with the South African government.
