SOUTHERN AFRICA: A MONTHLY SURVEY OF NEWS AND OPINION is the only periodical published in the United States, which covers the complex issues of the white-ruled areas of the African continent.

SOUTHERN AFRICA provides a concise news coverage monitored from over fifty newspapers and magazines, as well as background information to the reports. The coverage is divided into separate areas, under headings such as “Inside South Africa,” “Inside Namibia,” “Inside Zimbabwe,” “The Portuguese Territories,” “Action News and Notes,” “Defense,” “United States and Southern Africa,” “At the United Nations,” “Economics.”

In addition, a feature is published each month to give background information to the situation in southern Africa. In the past, features have included eyewitness reports on FRELIMO (Mozambique) by Robert Van Lierop, on MPLA (Angola) by Basil Davidson and Boubaker Adjali; “Will Investment Reform South Africa?” by Ruth First; a report by a representative of the International Commission of Jurists (Judge William Booth) at the trial of Namibian strikers.

The magazine is considered a vital source of information by Africanists, libraries, students, Black Studies programs, activists.
