Announcements:
November news survey work will be handled by Helen and Alice.
Daantjie Oosthuizen, professor of philosophy at Rhodes University and an active member of UCM there, is in the U.S. Hopefully the committee can have an evening with him the end of November.

Minutes of October 31 meeting.
Relations with Mozambique:
After much discussion it was decided to invite Arturo Vilankulu to come to our next meeting to share with us his understanding of what is happening in Dar and in Frelimo.

The people working on the Committee for a Free Mozambique have met and had a think tank. They are working on a list of sponsors, having trouble getting some of the kinds of support wanted. It was suggested that a deadline be set for the formulation of the list or they could be at it forever. The London Committee, with which Tim is in contact, was pleased to know of the possibility of a U.S. committee. A pamphlet they are producing may be of great value here. Funds for the committee are being asked from Union’s Chest Fund.

Dick Parker reported on his work. He has helped arrange for Khan to be on WBAI. He is also working with the Rockefeller students at Union, calling into question the Foundation and its involvement in South Africa. Bob informed us that while Chase had seemingly improved its position in relation to South Africa by closing two bank branches, it had in fact significantly increased its involvement by buying 15% of stock in Standard Bank and having an employee in the Standard Bank branches to handle U.S. business.

Bob Jolly reported on his work with church bureaucrats regarding investments. Some were very helpful in giving him the information wanted but others were not. This led into a long discussion of our relation to the denominations, the NCC, and the persons involved. Monday, November 4, there will be a major strategy meeting of the Africa secretaries of the NCC. Tim and Gail will attend.

The budget was presented and the need to find more funds made evident by the fact that we are living off the newsletter at the moment. Funds are to be sought from the Methodists for postage for the newsletter, as was done last year.

Next meeting: THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 21, at Union Theological Seminary. The meeting will begin at 7:30.
