The ARICA RESEARCH GROUP is a radical research and educational organization committed to promoting a more informed concern with, and protest against the role the US plays in the domination of Africa. By developing and publishing research about Africa the ARG seeks to illustrate the international dimensions of racism and the need for fusing an anti-imperialist struggle with an anti-racist one.

Towards this end, the ARG publishes a regular column of news and analysis which is carried in the Guardian, the Liberation News Service, and publications in Europe and Africa. Based in Cambridge, Mass., the ARG has members working in several cities and maintains representatives in Europe and Africa.

The ARG has a very modest budget. It is financed by individual contributions, occasional grants from churches and other sympathetic organizations. It receives no support from government agencies, US corporations or their foundations. We welcome your help.

" As we see it, neo-colonialism (which we may call rationalized Imperialism) is more a defeat for the international working class than for the colonized peoples. Neo-colonialism is at work on two fronts..."

-- Amilcar Cabral, Leader of revolutionary peoples of "Portuguese" Guinea and the Cape Verde Islands(PAIGC)
