THE 1978
ANTI-APARTHEID
SOUTH AFRICA FREEDOM CALENDAR

12 individual monthly wall posters reproduced in their original vivid colors, suitable for framing.

These dramatic works of art were selected from 375 entries in the first nationwide anti-apartheid poster competition, sponsored by the American Committee on Africa.

A few comments about the posters:

(to the artists) "... Your efforts, energies, time and talent have added to the strength of the anti-apartheid movement and support of the people of South Africa who are carrying on a courageous struggle in their quest for dignity and freedom." Ambassador Leslie O. Harriman, Nigerian Ambassador to the United Nations and Chairperson of the United Nations Special Committee Against Apartheid.

"Protest art has long been a powerful weapon against tyranny and injustice." Judge William Booth, President, American Committee on Africa.

"These posters are an important expression against apartheid. They should be seen and displayed around the world." Ambassador Dramane Quattara, Organization for African Unity.

The funds raised from the sale of the calendar will be used to benefit the victims of apartheid.
