WESTDEUTSCHE LENDSBANK GROSSENZENTRALE

This bank list consists of banks which have been documented as being involved in South African lending. Some of these banks (for example, the First Pennsylvania Bank) may have already announced a complete moratorium on loans to South Africa. If your bank does not appear on the COBLSA list, it does not necessarily mean that it is a "clean" bank, but only that there is no documentation of its involvement. In this case, we urge you to write to your bank and ask the following questions:

1) Have you at any time been involved in lending to South Africa? "lending" means loans, either direct or through a consortium of banks, to the South African government, to state-owned agencies (parastatals), to South African corporations, or to U.S. corporations operating in South Africa; the underwriting or purchase of bonds of the South African government, parastatals, or private corporations; the financing of trade with South Africa; and interbank lending.

2) Do you have a public policy prohibiting lending to any sector of South African society until the complete dismantling of the apartheid system has been achieved?

Until a bank can answer the above two questions in the affirmative, it is not a "clean" bank. We recommend then that you withdraw your account from that bank and let them know why you are doing so. Redeposit your money in any savings and loans bank (check that they are not "redlining") or in a commercial bank which does not lend to South Africa. Please notify COBLSA of any findings which with may come up regarding a bank's status on this issue so that we may constantly update and correct this list.
