For over a year and a half South Africa has been a major issue here at Stanford. Where do we stand now? Despite the unanimous recommendation of the trustees' own advisory committee (CIR), they voted against withdrawal of Texaco from South Africa. But they have yet to substantiate their claim that corporations are a progressive force in South Africa. Will you join us in questioning them on their past actions? Will you join us in calling on them to come to Stanford to hear the community's sentiments and to examine the evidence on South Africa? Will you join us in working toward an ethical policy for Stanford on the issue of South Africa?

QUESTIONS for the Trustees

What is the purpose of having a community Committee on Investment Responsibility (CIR) if you ignore its important recommendations?

What research have you done that led you to overrule the CIR recommendation for corporate withdrawal?

Will you come to campus to a community forum/Trustee meeting on South Africa on Monday or Tuesday, May 8 or 9? Why not?

Why are the trustee subcommittee recommendations secret?

Should trustees with direct corporate involvement in South Africa participate in Stanford's South Africa policy decisions?

Examples: John Grey, president Standard Oil, Thomas Pike, VP Fluor

Though calling for foreign corporate withdrawal is a crime of terrorism—punishable by death—every legitimate black group in South Africa has called for such withdrawal. How do you justify Stanford's opposition to this?

You might consider these questions in formulating your own when contacting your trustees.
