Dear Mozambique Support Network supporters,

The Los Angeles local of the Mozambique Support Network is proud to announce its first activity - participation in the national tour of Lina Magaia. Lina Magaia is a long-time Frelimo activist, journalist, and agronomist who has recently compiled eye-witness accounts of the war in Mozambique in the book Dumba Nengue: Run for Your Life, Peasant Tales of Tragedy in Mozambique (published by Africa World Press).

There will be two public meetings where Lina Magaia will speak about current events in Mozambique. The evening of Tuesday, January 19, she will be speaking at 2824 So. Western Ave. in Los Angeles. The following day, Wednesday, January 20, she will be speaking at 4 p.m. at UCLA in the Humanities Conference Room, Royce 314.

We apologize for the very late notice; her visit was only arranged after the holidays, with understandable delays in setting up firm times and places for her appearance. We hope that you will be able to attend at least one of these events.

We are also planning a meeting of the local MSN in the near future, and you will be notified. We hope that this tour will be the beginning of a successful educational campaign for victory in Mozambique.

A luta continua,

Kathie Sheldon
